

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A method for sequestering and storing CO₂ in which gaseous carbon dioxide is injected into a subterranean methane hydrate field, displacing methane in the methane hydrate field with the carbon dioxide and forming carbon dioxide hydrate. The displaced methane may then be collected.